After watching the entirety of Angel Seasons 1-5 (after watching all of Buffy season's 1-7) recently, for the very first time, I think it was fate that I decided to watch them both finally, here in 2008. I had always known about them but to say I was a fan during their actual runs on TV would be false.

The title began as a limited series subtitled After the Fall. This storyline lasted for seventeen issues, after which IDW chose to continue the series as an ongoing with new writers. While After the Fall was plotted by Joss Whedon and considered canon, the canonical status of subsequent issues is more ambiguous.

I will tell you what is in the Angel: After the Fall Slipcase edition. Basically it is just the four trade paperbacks and a cool orange relatively hard slipcase with designs of the characters on it.

Originally intended as a 12-issue limited series, After the Fall expanded into a 17-issue Angel series. After the Fall was then followed by an ongoing series, with rotating writers and artists but without the input of Joss Whedon. In addition to this, After the Fall has also spawned multiple spin-offs of its own.

Set before the events of the Buffy Season 8 comics; Angel: After the Fall was published by IDW from 2007. A 17 part series dealt with what happened to Angel and his friends directly after the final episode of the TV series, Not Fade Away. Angel had taken on the Senior Partners at Wolfram and Hart and as a result, LA was sent to hell.

Angel: After The Fall collects issues #1-17 of the comic book series as well as some of the many covers. Unfortunately, this collection contains no "bonus features", which is disappointing considering the initial hardcover collections contained many extras including scripts and variant covers.
